WINEMAKING

The grapes were harvested at an average ripeness of 23,5Balling. The Semillon was harvested a week before the Chenin blanc and the varieties were handled separately before blending. The grapes were destalked and pressed and the resultant juice was settled for 24 hours to ensure a good clarity. The racked clear juice was inoculated with a selected yeast strain and fermented at 12°C for 21-23 days. The wine was racked, blended and stored cool (12°C) on fine lees. Prior to bottling the wine was stabilized, racked once more and lightly filtered. The blend consist of 55% Chenin blanc and 45% Semillon
